DEDICATION

In the fall of 1971 Abington Friends welcomed a new librarian, Ms. Josepha Clark. Having just received her Master's Degree in Library Science from Drexel, Ms. Clark was ready to work with our students and help them in every way possible.

Being an adamant womens' libber, she teaches a human relations course on Feminism, and she has also taught two English courses to our ninth and tenth graders.

She has, during the three years she has been here, fulfilled her job in every way. She understands young people, having six children of her own, four of whom attend Abington Friends. To all students who open themselves to her in both academic and personal aspects, she is a valuable friend and advisor.

The Class of 1974 would like to recognize all that she has done for us, and it is with appreciation, love and respect that this yearbook is dedicated to Ms. Josepha Clark.

To the SENIOR CLASS

We commune with one another as we work for a common purpose; as we silently watch nature; as we enter into dialogue to find truth and struggle with its demands; and we listen to music and our eyes meet in understanding. None of these things can occur without a community of values. There can be no bond in labor without accord on the worth of its aim.

— George W. Morgan

For the last all-girls' class at A.F.S. I hold special affection. I sense that you have understood the common purpose towards which our school is striving and have given support towards its fulfillment. May your future energy, enthusiasm and labor carry on what you have already started, so that the world you touch outside A.F.S. will know the demands that truth requires.

We'd like to say a special goodbye to everyone who makes Abington Friends what it is. Since we've come to this school we've done many aggravating things to just about everybody we could. Besides sneaking out to lunch and disrupting classes we do like to think we've left a part of ourselves with you and taken a part of you with us.

This year has passed quickly for us and we are now looking forward to new things. But it will be a long time before we forget the people and events that passed through here when we did. And we are grateful that we have them to remember.

We know Abington Friends has affected many of our lives greatly and we know that, in the situations we have yet to encounter, the education we have received here will have great bearing on the decisions we make.

There's a special closeness here that is hard to give up and go beyond. But we know it must be done, and that our lives must go on.

SENIORS

NANCY ZURN

Come now look upon the children
of today,
do you remember
those days of collecting leaves
and sunshine,
stirring up memories of our old haunts?
You captured the sun
with your silken hair —
caught the dragonfuly —
rared the wind.
When I go,
I leave the field to you
but when you go
sow your path with summer flowers
and leave no dandelions
full to the wind.

ELLEN EDELMAN

How I am young,
When I realized the universe within the actuality of all that is.
All that is yet beyond me, save acceptance
All that is without me
and all that is within me
where all is and cannot help but wonder who tells you who you are?
How I am young
as I am the master of my ship its rudder, its gale, its port from which it no longer needs to sail.
Which is today, this very moment, now.

I've gotta let it out.
I've gotta show the world, world's gotta see.
See all the love, love that's in me — I said
Why walk alone. Why worry when it's warm over here.
You've got so much to say, say what you mean.
Mean what you're Thinking and think anything.
Oh why, why must you waste your life away.
You've got to live for today — then let it go.

It makes no difference how deeply seated may be the trouble,
How hopeless the outlook, how muddled
the tangle, How great the mistake.
A sufficient realization of love will dissolve
it all . . . If only you could love enough you would be the happiest and most powerful

"Does it happen all at once like being wound up, or bit by bit?" "It doesn't happen all at once," said the Skin Horse, "You become. It takes a long time. That's why it doesn't happen very often to people who break easily, or have sharp edges, or who have to be carefully kept. Generally, by the time you are Real, most of your hair has been loved off, and your eyes drop out and you're loose in the joints and very shabby. But these things don't matter at all, because once you're Real you can't be ugly, except to people who don't understand."

Your reason and your passion are the rudder and the sails
of your seafaring soul.
If either your rudder or your sails be broken, you can but toss and drift, or else be held at a standstill in mid-seas.
For reason, ruling alone, is a farce confining, and passion, unattended, is a flame that burns it its own destruction.
Therefore, let your soul exalt your reason, it's the height of passism.

MICHELLE COOPERSMITH

Why should we be in such desperate haste to succeed,

and in such desperate enterprises?

If a man does not keep pace

with his companions,

perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer.

Let him step to the music which he hears,

however measured and far away.
